This song refers to a "tonic" called Hadacol, which sold very well and received a great many unsolicited testimonials regarding its benefits. There were several from traveling ministers, who will remain nameless. After some really smart people decided to look into this substance, it was learned that the tonic was a strong alcoholic beverage. A few heads rolled, but not many. There was a huge group of people who became alcoholics by mere virtue of the fact that they consumed mass quantities of Hadacol.
